

Giving advice: Stage 1

Name: _____ Class: _____ Date: _____

Step 1: With a partner, read each scenario aloud. Then, write advice you would give for each one.

1. Recently, your friend started to gain weight because she always eats junk food. You are worried about your friend's health. What advice can you give your friend? How would you express it?
2. At your part-time job, a coworker you don't know well looks very sick. What advice can you give him/her? How would you express it?
3. You are a teacher at school. Three of your students are always late for class and often forget their homework. What advice can you give these students? How would you express it?
4. You are having dinner with your boss at a restaurant. You have been there many times and know the menu well. Your boss orders one dish but does not realize it is very spicy. You know your boss cannot eat spicy food. What advice do you give? How would you express it?

Step 2: With your partner, take turns writing your advice on the board.
